Davos Cabal: BlackRock's Fink Replaces Schwab as Head of WEF

The World Economic Forum (WEF) announced on August 15 that it had "concluded a comprehensive investigation of allegations" concerning wrongdoing by WEF founder Klaus Schwab. According to the Forum's press release, the investigation found "no evidence of material wrongdoing" by Schwab or his wife, Hilde. As we reported in April, a WEF whistleblower had charged the Davos grand poohbah with misappropriating funds, including payments for massages and luxury travel at the organization's expense. The 87-year-old Schwab denied the allegations but, nevertheless, stepped down as WEF chairman.

Concomitant with its statement absolving Schwab of misconduct, the WEF released a statement from BlackRock CEO Larry Fink and Roche Holding's vice-chair Andre Hoffmann, who were appointed as interim co-chairs of its board. "We are honored to take on this leadership role on an interim basis at a pivotal time for the World Economic Forum," the duo said. "As the organization moves into a new chapter," they continued, "we look ahead with clarity, purpose, and confidence in the Forum's enduring mission…. We look forward to helping shape a more resilient and prosperous future, and to reinventing and strengthening the Forum as an indispensable institution for public-private cooperation."

As the billionaire CEO of investment giant BlackRock, the world's largest asset manager, Fink is one of the planet's most well-known business executives. He is also one of its most outspoken globalists. Besides being a top dog at the WEF, Fink is a member of the world government-promoting Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) and Trilateral Commission. Fink has notoriously used BlackRock's financial heft to push "woke" ESG and DEI policies, promote pro-Beijing/CCP policies and investment, and advocate for destructive "Net Zero" carbon programs. The following are a few of our articles and videos on Fink and BlackRock:

Like Fink, Swiss billionaire Andre Hoffmann is a certified globalist. He is a member of the Royal Institute of International Affairs (the CFR's elder sister), a member of the Club of Rome, a member of the WEF's board of trustees, and International vice-president of the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF). He is the scion of the fabulously wealthy Hoffmann-La Roche pharmaceutical dynasty. The company, commonly known as Roche, boasts of being the first western company to establish a joint venture in China (in 1994) and brags that it is "Building Shanghai into world's third largest strategic center." See here and here for Roche's recent deals in China.

The Fink/Hoffman interim will simply continue the globalist-communist convergence path charted by Schwab over the past six decades. At the WEF's 2022 Davos confab of billionaires, CCP dictator Xi Jinping was given center stage and, a few months later, Schwab declared that the murderous Beijing regime is "a role model for many countries." The CCP propaganda organ Global Times recounts the warm WEF-CCP relationship since the 1970s. The CCP's Ministry of Foreign Affairs further expands on the WEF-CCP comradeship here. And China's State Council provides more CCP-WEF mutual admiration here. — William F. Jasper

WEF's "Great Reset," UN's Agenda 2030: A United Front Against Humanity

One thing you can bank on: The World Economic Forum's leadership transition from Klaus Schwab to Larry Fink and Andre Hoffmann does not portend a diminution of the WEF's megalomaniacal push for totalitarian world government. The Davos gang's Great Reset — an attempt to completely "transform" (i.e., to totally control and reengineer) the world politically, socially, economically, morally, and spiritually — continues apace. Launched in 2020 in tandem with the Covid Plandemic, the Great Reset is intended as a permanent revolution. This is why Schwab declared that the world will "never" return to normal. In his book COVID-19: The Great Reset, Schwab explains: "Many of us are pondering when things will return to normal. The short response is: never. Nothing will ever return to the 'broken' sense of normalcy that prevailed prior to the crisis because the coronavirus pandemic marks a fundamental inflection point in our global trajectory."

As mentioned by Fink and Hoffman in the WEF statement cited above, the would-be Masters of the Universe are committed "to reinventing and strengthening the Forum as an indispensable institution for public-private cooperation." These billionaire corporatists benefit handsomely from their public-private partnerships, and among the foremost of these partnerships is the is the official WEF-UN Strategic Partnership signed in 2019. You can see Schwab and UN

Secretary-General António Guterres proudly displaying their newly-signed agreement here. The same webpage informs us that:

> The Strategic Partnership Framework will focus on the following areas:
> - Financing the 2030 Agenda — Mobilize systems and accelerate finance flows toward the 2030 Agenda and the UN Sustainable Development Goals….
> - Climate change — Achieve clear, measurable and public commitments from the private sector to reach carbon neutrality by 2050….
> - Health — Support countries achieve good health and well-being for all, within the context of the 2030 Agenda….
> - Digital cooperation — Meet the needs of the Fourth Industrial Revolution while seeking to advance global analysis, dialogue and standards for digital governance and digital inclusiveness.
> - Gender equality and the empowerment of women — Foster multistakeholder partnerships and coalitions for full participation and equal opportunities of women at all levels of decision-making and for productive participation of women in the labour force….
> - Education and skills — Promote public-private partnerships to address global reskilling and lifelong learning for the future requirements for work.

Stripped of its glorious-sounding globalese, the Great Reset/Agenda 2030 scheme is a totalitarian plan to establish a planetary technocracy, a digital dictatorship mimicking Communist China's social credit system with omnipresent surveillance, biometric IDs, Central Bank Digital Currency, Net Zero energy and travel restrictions, insect diets, open borders, complete censorship, etc. (See here, here, here, here, here, and here.)

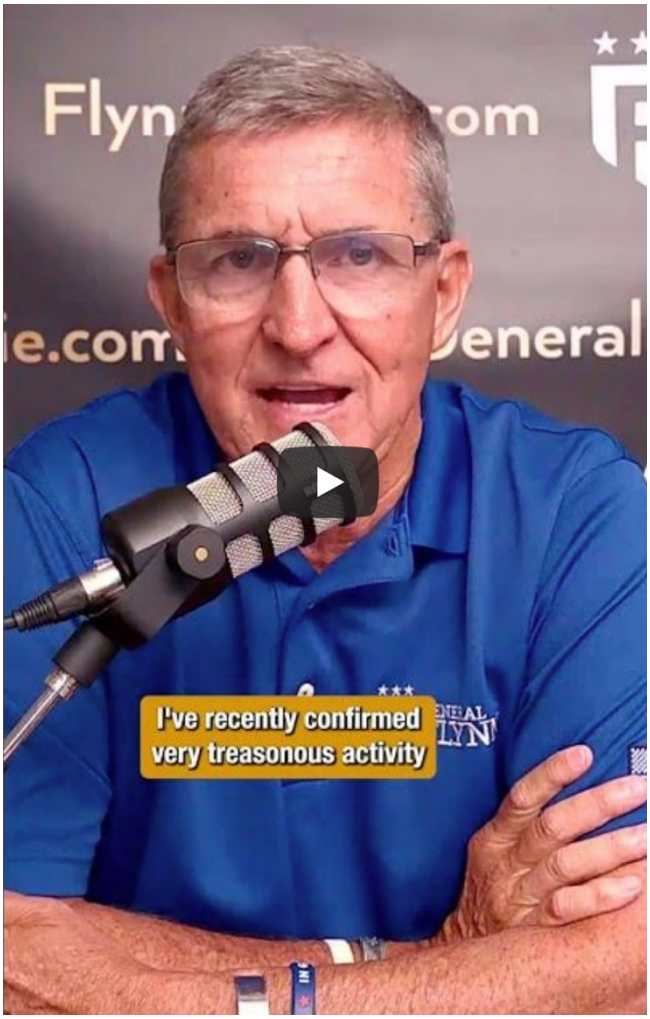
John Birch Society Leadership Conference: Flynn, Fitts, Newman, Trewhella, and More

General Michael Flynn, financial expert Catherine Austin Fitts, Senior Editor for The New American Alex Newman, and Pastor Matthew Trewhella will be headlining an all-star lineup of patriots at The John Birch Society's Leadership Conference in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania (near historic Valley Forge) on September 13. Don't miss it! Don't wait! Find out more.



"Hey everyone, I'm General Mike Flynn and I want to personally invite you to join us for The John Birch Society Leadership Conference, September 13, 2025, in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania. I've recently confirmed very treasonous activity that all Americans should be aware of. And this communist coup that has been going on for a long time now, is very real. Find out more at this Leadership Conference by The John Birch Society."

"This is Catherine Austin Fitts. I'm looking forward to seeing you in King of Prussia at The John Birch Society annual Leadership Conference on September 13. This is going to be a great time…. My membership in JBS is one that I treasure. It's a great group of excellent people doing work for liberty, including financial freedom, which, as you know, is near and dear to my heart. One of my favorite quotes is 'the currency of the future will be relationships of trust.' The JBS Leadership Conference is a great opportunity to get together with the JBS team and many other members…. It's from these connections that community and real change flows." — William F. Jasper

Roger Stone: Deep State Traitors Are Running Scared

The Deep State operatives who targeted President Trump and his inner circle can and should be charged with seditious conspiracy and treason, argues legendary political operative Roger Stone in an exclusive video interview with The New American. See this explosive episode of Behind the Deep State.

The conspirators are running scared, with former CIA Director John Brennan and others already having fled the country, Stone said. However, they still have Deep State moles within the CIA, the Department of Justice, and other agencies working to protect them.

Stone, who has served and advised at least three U.S. presidents including Trump, also noted that because of the FBI raid on Mar-a-Lago, the conspirators could be charged in federal court in Florida. That means there's a chance at a fair trial, unlike in D.C., he said.

These conspirators utilized the entire force and power of the U.S. government for destroying and removing a duly elected president, Stone explained. Then, the conspiracy continued to prevent Trump from winning again.

"This is one continuing conspiracy run by the same people," he said.

Stone also said Trump supports repealing the Federal Reserve Act, among other major policy shifts aimed at draining the swamp. It can be done, and it must be, he said. — Alex Newman

Bolivia Poised to Elect Right-wing President

For the first time in more than 20 years, Bolivia is poised to elect a non-left-wing president. For months the Andean nation has been teetering on the brink of a civil war, thanks to the efforts by renegade former president

Evo Morales to stir up a violent revolution in order to be reinstalled into power. The radical leftist Morales, after a ruinous 13 years as Bolivia's president, was finally forced to resign in 2019. During his farcical reign of error, Morales openly supported the production of cocaine, cozied up to all of the world's leading communist dictatorships, and systematically impoverished the entire population. He is particularly fond of communist mass-murderer Mao Zedong, for whom he has repeatedly expressed admiration. He visited China four times and signed a strategic partnership with CCP dictator Xi Jinping, greatly increasing the Beijing regime's presence and influence in Bolivia and Latin America.

Now, the people of Bolivia have followed the path of Argentina, Ecuador, and El Salvador in repudiating Marxism and opting for a pro-freedom, conservative candidate. The final outcome has yet to be decided, but it is obvious that Morales' call for his supporters to refrain from voting has backfired. To be sure, neither of the two leading candidates, who now face a runoff in October, is a Javier Milei or Jair Bolsonaro. The leading vote-getter, Rodrigo Paz Pereira, a senator, is the standard-bearer for the centrist Christian Democratic party, while former president Jorge Quiroga has at times also been a Christian Democrat. Belying its left-leaning origins, the Christian Democratic Party's current platform promises tax breaks, the elimination of trade barriers, and more access to credit, all in order to spur real growth in the long-impoverished South American nation. While this platform is a far cry from the free-market explosion unfolding to the south in Milei's Argentina, it is obvious that the people of Bolivia, envious of the Argentine example, have had it with the failed promises of a generation of revolutionary socialist policies.

Evo Morales himself, who is now on the run from authorities subsequent to being charged for trafficking of minors in connection with his alleged penchant for dalliances with teenage girls, has been doing his best to carry out a rule or ruin campaign from his hideout in the Amazonian Chapare region, where he is being protected by his militant supporters. In recent weeks, pro-Morales thugs have rioted, set up roadblocks, and even called for secession from Bolivia by the remote areas where Morales still has a substantial following. All this from a man once lionized by the international press and lavished with effusive praise by heads of state for his carefully cultivated populist demeanor and status as the first Native American head of state.

Evo adopted an antagonistic posture toward the United States and most of the rest of the free world, even while toadying to the likes of China, Russia, and Iran. For years, Americans and many other foreign citizens found it difficult to obtain visas to visit Bolivia, with one month being the maximum normal time granted in country. And while Bolivia has a huge percentage of comparatively poor aboriginal peoples, including millions of Aymara and Quechua speakers for whom Spanish is a second language or not spoken at all, the country also has vast lithium deposits and plenty of other untapped resources (aside from the ubiquitous coca leaf, of course).

Here's hoping that the spark of liberty ignited in Argentina less than two years ago by Javier Milei will continue to spread across the region. As of right now,

Argentina, Paraguay, Ecuador, Panama, and El Salvador all have "right wing," pro-freedom governments, with Bolivia soon to join their ranks, and Chile and Colombia, also fed up with socialism, possibly to follow. Mexico and Brazil, meanwhile, Latin America's two largest countries, unfortunately remain firmly in the grip of the Marxists. So the struggle is far from over, but the future looks bright. — Steve Bonta

Three States Sign Agreements With ICE

Three new states — Arkansas, South Dakota, and West Virginia — have signed agreements with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) to increase cooperation with the agency under its 287(g) program.

Fox News reports:

> On Wednesday, West Virginia Gov. Patrick Morrisey will announce one of the most wide-ranging agreements a state has forged with ICE yet, enlisting the West Virginia State Police, Division of Corrections and Rehabilitation and National Guard to aid immigration enforcement through the "287(g)" authority heralded by President Donald Trump.…
> Unlike some other states, West Virginia law enforcement will also be able to issue immigration detainers, prepare documents for approval from federal ICE officers and arrest felonious aliens who have the penchant to escape.
> West Virginia Division of Corrections will be permitted to hold immigrants on detainer, so long as the actions fall under federal auspices.…
> Farther west, South Dakota Gov. Larry Rhoden recently announced cooperation with ICE to a lesser extent with his "Operation Prairie Thunder" public safety crackdown.
> Rhoden … announced earlier this month that Operation Prairie Thunder would be a "comprehensive, targeted public safety initiative" in the state — with a focus on the Sioux Falls metro area.…
> In Arkansas, a state law took effect this week that increases penalties for illegal immigrants committing "serious felonies involving violence," among other stipulations.
> The "Defense Against Criminal Illegals Act," signed by Gov. Sarah Huckabee Sanders, also allowed Arkansas sheriffs to engage with ICE.

Although state cooperation with ICE may help combat mass migration and increase illegal-alien deportations, it is ultimately the wrong solution to a real problem. Nowhere does the U.S. Constitution grant the federal government authority over immigration — only naturalization — or domestic law enforcement. Authority over immigration and law enforcement resides with the states.

States should not only reassert their sovereign authority over immigration, but nullify unconstitutional federal law-enforcement agencies. This includes enacting legislation similar to Kentucky's Senate Bill 115, introduced in the state General Assembly in 2024, which would have removed state recognition for law-enforcement officers of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Secret Service; U.S. Marshals Service; Drug Enforcement Administration; Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives; U.S. Forest Service; Department of Agriculture's Office of the Inspector General; Immigration and Customs Enforcement; and the National Park Service. (Officers of those agencies would have lost their default status as "peace officers" with "the same powers and duties of any other peace officer" in Kentucky.)

By following the U.S. Constitution, states can combat mass migration and reassert their sovereignty.

Green Bay, Wisconsin, "Sustainability Commission" to Draft "Rights of Nature" Resolution

The Green Bay, Wisconsin, City Council has voted to require the city's sustainability commission to draft a nonbinding "Rights of Nature" resolution, which would assert that nature has legal rights equivalent to those of human beings.

According to the city's report on this matter:

> The "Rights of Nature" movement frames natural ecosystems and features such as rivers, wetlands, forests, and other living communities as legal persons that hold the right to exist, flourish, and be defended in a court of law. While most environmental regulations treat nature as property to be managed for human benefit, this movement asks governments to shift the paradigm and recognize nature itself as a legal entity with inherent rights.

According to Fox 11 News, the Sustainability Commission is "expected to take a few months" to draft a resolution, which will then require another vote by the city council. Although the pending resolution is nonbinding, it demonstrates the increasing attacks against America's natural-law foundation — namely that rights come from God, not government. As the Declaration of Independence famously asserts, "All men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights."

These rights include private property, as well as human use of natural resources. Genesis 1:28 records God's command to "be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth and subdue it, and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the birds of the heavens and over every living thing that moves on the earth."

Of course, the unaddressed issue here is who will speak for the "rights" of the river, the wetland, the forest, the "endangered" salamander, etc. Why, the myriad of radical attorneys for Friends of the Earth, the Sierra Club, the ACLU, and the hundreds of other enviro-Leninist organizations funded by the Rockefeller-Ford-Soros foundations and U.S. government agencies, that's who. Naturally.

Rather than promoting a warped view of rights and schemes related to the UN's Agenda 2030, Green Bay and other governing bodies should recognize and reassert God-given rights as promoted by the Founding Fathers. — Peter Rykowski

Senate Confirms CFR Member to Key Trade Post

The U.S. Senate is currently on recess until the beginning of September, but shortly before it left Washington, D.C., it confirmed a member of the Council on Foreign Relations to a key trade-policy position.

On August 2, the Senate voted 78-17 to confirm Luke Lindberg as under secretary of agriculture for trade and foreign agricultural affairs. Lindberg, who worked at the Export-Import Bank during the first Trump administration and most recently led South Dakota Trade, a public-private partnership, is a CFR member, according to the organization's roster. He is also Senator John Thune's (R-S.D.) son-in-law.

Revealingly, the lopsided Senate vote for Lindberg stood in contrast to nearly every other confirmation vote, which has been overwhelmingly party-line. As The New American has previously reported, "The CFR does indeed wield unparalleled influence in political, financial, business, media, and academic circles, and is regularly showered with accolades by 'the great and the good.' It is the public face, the brain trust, and the central nervous system [of the Deep State]." Since its creation, CFR members have worked to strengthen internationalism and "global governance" at the expense of national sovereignty.

Although President Donald Trump has selected fewer CFR members than past administrations, his administration still contains them. It's essential that we educate our fellow citizens about the CFR and Deep State, including by using the "CFR: Still the Power Behind the Throne" reprint. — Peter Rykowski

China Mulls Yuan-backed Stablecoin

According to an exclusive report by Reuters, Communist China is considering issuing stablecoins backed by the Chinese yuan (or renminbi) in a bid to further internationalize their currency as a competitive alternative to the U.S. dollar and the euro. The yuan is notoriously difficult to exchange outside of China and a few East Asian entrepots, in no small measure because China's extreme paranoia has led to a virtual financial Great Wall around the country; it is nearly impossible for foreigners living and working in China to wire any of their earnings abroad, for instance.

China banned all mining and trading of cryptocurrencies in 2021, precisely because these assets afforded Chinese citizens and foreigners living in China an easy way to send money overseas — or conceal it from China's Orwellian regime. But China is embracing blockchain technology to the extent that it can be exploited by the CCP for its own repressive purposes. In the case of the contemplated yuan-backed stablecoins, China obviously regards them as the most efficient way to achieve a fully digitized yuan — in effect, a CBDC by other means.

The CCP's sudden embrace of stablecoins should give pause for thought to all the trained seals applauding the recent passage of the GENIUS Act, a bill that effectively imposed federal regulatory control over stablecoins. The GENIUS Act was in fact just the latest fedgov usurpation in the financial sector, and will have malign consequences, unintended or otherwise. With the CCP, at least, the malign will to control every aspect of every citizen's financial activity is open and unapologetic. — Steve Bonta

CCP Flips "Taiwan's Joe Rogan" to the Dark Side

If there's a Chinese equivalent to Joe Rogan, it would be the flamboyant Chen Chih-han, also known by his English name Holger Chen. Brash and foulmouthed, with the tattooed, heavily muscled arms of a former marine, weightlifter, and former MMA fighter, Chen, who hails from Taiwan, has long been loudly critical of the CCP and champion of a free Taiwan. Chen is a successful businessman, owning the Genghis Khan chain of gyms in Taiwan. Only a few years ago, he was a passionate supporter of former Taiwanese president Tsai Ing-wen, and identified as Taiwanese, not Chinese.

How things have changed. In June of this year, Chen announced that he was going to visit the Mainland as a "Peace Ambassador." When he returned to Taiwan, he was completely transformed into an obstreperous pro-China shill, and his legions of fanboys quickly followed his lead. "If both sides of the [Taiwan] Strait work together, we will be invincible," Chen proclaimed. According to Taiwan-based blogger Angelica Oung, who writes for the Substack Taipology:

> When [Chen] went to China and declared himself a proud, authentic Chinese, he didn't just crash through the Overton Window of what one is allowed to say in Taiwan, he took all of his TPP fanboys with him. Before you know it, people were popping off ALL OVER SOCIAL MEDIA proclaiming themselves as Chinese. Something that I have never ever seen before in Taiwan.

Among the sentiments expressed by young Taiwanese fans of Chen:

"I'm a Chinese person from Taiwan. Is there a problem with that?"

"I have never forgotten my roots. I identify as Chinese. I want Taiwan to stay far from the threat of war, and return to our glory days as a Little Dragon of Asia."

"We are all Chinese. Just born in Taiwan."

"I'm Chinese! Chinese Taiwanese! Of the Motherland!"

Trump's tariffs, which have already been levied against Taiwan but somehow have still not been imposed on the world's second-largest economy, China, have added accelerant to the pro-China fire. Concerning tariffs, Chen has waxed indignantly eloquent:

> "Why do we have to be America's dogs? Why do we have to give so much protection money to the US every year? Americans take what they want of the Taiwanese and we can't say no while Chinese policies help Taiwan economically."
> "We're getting nothing but identity politics to make you forget your ancestors and blood. China's too strong. The Americans need a way to trip them up. Taiwanese want to help them? Who are the DPP? They are traitors to the Han people. Just like the traitors who helped the Japanese slaughter their fellow Chinese. Except now they work for the Americans. Treat the Chinese like a brother and they will treat you like a brother. Be a minion for the US like Korea and Japan? Your fate is to be robbed. Military purchases, Tariffs, it never stops."
> "We work like cattle and horses to earn money from the Americans. Now they say 'it's too much.' Tariff is war by other means. It's disrespect. It's exploitation. Where is the justice? They're out of money. Where do they get it from? Their closest allies. China? Left alone. So don't you think this is a world where only the size of your fist matters?"

Chen has since made a second trip to the Mainland, this time to southeast China's economic hub, Shenzhen. And despite getting a taste of communist censorship when his arm tattoos were blurred out during an appearance on CCTV, Chen appears to have done a one-eighty from years of "pandabashing" and unabashed Taiwanese nationalism.

This sort of about-face is typical of foreigners, including ethnic overseas Chinese such as Chen, who make superficial visits to mainland China. Many of China's large cities, such as Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Chengdu, are indeed superficially impressive. China's high-speed rail system, the "gao-tie," is the best in the world. Her urban skylines bristle with towers that dwarf those of Manhattan and Chicago. Many Chinese skyscrapers put on dazzling light shows at night, the likes of which can't be seen in the United States outside of Las Vegas. And the country is now crisscrossed by a massive freeway system, with many of the world's highest and most modern bridges spanning China's many deep gorges, and state-of-the-art tunnels through China's many mountains. In a word, China is, at first glance, a prodigy to behold.

But discreetly hidden from public view — or at least, from the view of foreign visitors — is China's oppressive totalitarian regime, poised to pounce on and disappear anyone exhibiting signs of opposition to the Communist Party. Every transaction, every train or plane ride, every social-media post, every online comment, is monitored by authorities. Banks of cameras monitored in real time by countless thousands of police watch every move of every pedestrian in every Chinese city, large or small. Churches are again being systematically ground down and forced to support the Communist Party and its swaggering supremo, Xi Jinping. Gone are the crude, impromptu firing squads of Mao's China; they've been replaced by execution vans that pick up condemned individuals and execute them by lethal injection while driving on public streets. And of course, China's vast secret market of harvested organs taken from prisoners of conscience is an unalloyed evil.

Anyone living in China eventually becomes aware of these things. It happened to China bloggers "Serpentza" (a white South African who now lives in the United States after years in China) and "laowhy86" (an American and close friend of Serpentza), who gradually transitioned from breathless documentation of the beauties of Chinese culture and landscape to criticism of modern China's stealth totalitarianism.

That a CCP-orchestrated charm offensive can win over one of communist China's most implacable foes (and someone whose native language is Chinese) speaks volumes of the subtlety of their propaganda. Much of their messaging is directed at Americans via social media, and its effectiveness is undeniable. And now, they appear to be successfully wooing a large part of Taiwan's youth through the good offices of one of Taiwan's most popular public figures. — Steve Bonta

Senator Grassley: Biden-Harris Trafficked Hundreds of Thousands of Children

On August 18, Senator Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) issued a press statement with data recently released from the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) showing the criminal and unconscionable activities of the Biden-Harris administration promoting the trafficking of hundreds of thousands of foreign children into the United States. He had been trying for years to obtain the information but had been repeatedly "stonewalled by the previous administration."

"My oversight continues to expose disturbing evidence that the Biden-Harris administration turned a blind eye to tens of thousands of kids who needed proper supervision and care. It's appalling to prioritize speed and optics over the safety and wellbeing of children," Grassley said. "I appreciate the Trump administration's efforts to undo the damage caused by the last administration's failed border policies, and I'll continue my oversight of the issue to ensure abuse like this never happens again."

Earlier this year the senator issued a bombshell report that, among many additional stunning revelations, noted: "Under the Biden-Harris administration, more than 500,000 children crossed the Southern border and entered the UAC [unaccompanied alien children] program, while cartel trafficking activity surged." Think of that: five hundred thousand! That's a population of children the size of Sacramento, Kansas City, or Atlanta!

Many of these children were delivered to drug cartel gangs. Many are raped, sodomized, sexually abused. Many are exploited for child pornography. Many are used for slave labor.

How can this be? How can the same screaming "human rights" activists and their media choir that cried crocodile tears for the unaccompanied minors who were held in detainment centers during the Trump border crackdown get away with going totally silent on the massive tsunami of child trafficking across our border under Biden-Harris?

It has been more than two years since courageous Health and Human Services (HHS) whistleblower Tara Lee Rodas dropped her shocking testimony before the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration Integrity, Security, and Enforcement. (See her April 26, 2023 printed testimony here and video of her testimony here.

Rodas testified to what she personally witnessed at the Pomona Fairplex Emergency Intake Site in California operated by HHS's Office of Refugee Resettlement (ORR):

> • I saw vulnerable indigenous children from Guatemala who speak Mayan dialects and can't speak Spanish. That means they can't ask for help in English and they can't ask for help in Spanish. These children become captive to their Sponsors.
> • I've sat with Case Managers as they cried retelling horrific things that were done to children on the journey.
> • I saw apartment buildings where 20, 30 & 40 unaccompanied children have been released.
> • I saw sponsors trying to simultaneously sponsor children from multiple ORR sites.
> • I saw sponsors using multiple addresses to obtain sponsorships of children.
> • I saw numerous cases of children in debt bondage and the child knew they had to stay with the sponsor until the debt was paid.

"It is easier to get a UAC than to get a pet," says Rodas.

On November 21, 2024, Tara Lee Rodas testified before a joint hearing of the House Homeland Security

Subcommittee on Border Security and Enforcement led by Chairman Clay Higgins (R-La.), and the Subcommittee on Oversight, Investigations, and Accountability led by Chairman Dan Bishop (R-N.C.). The committees also heard witness testimony from retired U.S. Border Patrol Deputy Patrol Agent in Charge J.J. Carrell, and counter-trafficking expert Alicia Hopper concerning how criminal organizations are exploiting unaccompanied alien children for illicit organ harvesting, sex trafficking, and forced labor. Their harrowing testimonies (see here for print and here for video) should have made coast-to-coast headlines and launched a thousand media investigations. But, of course, that didn't happen, and still hasn't happened. The "prestige press" has effectively spiked one of the most scandalous, sensational — but frightfully true — stories of the decade, if not the century. Especially horrifying are the stories of migrant children and young people being taken for organ harvesting, which has become a thriving business. — William F. Jasper

NGO Crime Wave: Multi-Billion Dollar Migrant-Trafficking Pipeline

The unspeakable evils perpetrated against migrants (and especially against migrant children) are occurring on such a horrendous scale due to the fact that vicious politicians have been funneling billions of our tax dollars into the coffers of hundreds of totally corrupt non-governmental organizations (NGOs) that pose as human-rights advocates while actually engaging in human trafficking. A July 17, 2025 session of the House Committee on Homeland Security heard expert testimony (see print and video) on the vast taxpayer-funded NGO migrant network. We're talking hundreds of NGOs and more than a dozen UN agencies funded with billions of U.S. tax dollars. Mike Howell, president of the Oversight Project and an advisory board member for the National Immigration Center for Enforcement, told the Committee:

> Simply put, under the Biden Administration's open border policies, the government could only do so much to facilitate mass illegal migration, welcome the illegal aliens to the United States, and move them around the country. It needed help and open borders organizations jumped at the opportunity to fill the void. The Biden Administration repaid them by driving an estimated $6 billion to a conglomerate of 15 UN agencies and 230 NGOs, as recently calculated by the Center for Immigration Studies, to do this work for them. [Emphasis added.]

As we have extensively reported (for example here, here, and here), the UN's International Organization for Migration (IOM), headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland, is the General Staff HQ for the immense "refugee" invasion forces that are specifically being directed to destabilize nations worldwide, and in particular the United States and Europe. Heading that subversive effort is Obama/Biden State Department apparatchik Amy Pope (CFR), IOM director general. While the prostitute "journalists" of the globalist regime media have refused to expose this colossal criminal enterprise, reporters for Muckraker and independent journalists such as Michael Yon and Todd Bensman have braved the dangers of the migrant routes throughout Mexico and Latin America to bring back video footage documenting the astounding scale of the treachery by the IOM, NGOs, and the Biden-Harris administration to flood our nation with millions of unvetted "refugees" from every corner of the Earth. For staggering visual proof of this perfidy, see here, here, here, and here. And even though the Biden-Harris migration tsunami has been greatly reduced since Trump 47 began, Michael Yon has warned that the invasion is not over — it still continues. Get US Out! of the United Nations! — William F. New Book Highlights JBS Record and Accomplishments

What is The John Birch Society, what does it support (and oppose), and what has it done — and what is it doing — to save our constitutional Republic? These and other questions are answered in the new book Vanguard of the Americanist Cause: A Close Look at The John Birch Society by Gary Benoit, editor-in-chief of The New American.

With our country — and the principles it was founded upon — under attack, it is essential that Americans get involved in the effort to protect our Republic through creating an informed electorate and taking organized action to influence elected officials. And as Benoit notes in his book, "far and away the best way to [do this] is through the principle-based, concerted-action program of The John Birch Society."

If you are not a JBS member, we encourage you to read this book. If you are already a member, please use it to inform your fellow citizens about the JBS and get them involved in the fight for freedom. Copies are available at ShopJBS.org. — Peter Rykowski
